A Historical Masterpiece

The Waterloo Napoleonic Horseman 10 Griff Hosker is a bronze sculpture that depicts a mounted Napoleonic cavalryman. The sculpture is highly detailed and realistic, capturing the intensity and drama of the Napoleonic Wars. The horseman is depicted in full gallop, his sword raised high in the air. His horse is rearing up, its muscles rippling with power. The sculpture is a powerful and evocative representation of the Napoleonic Wars, a conflict that shaped the course of European history.

The sculpture was created by British artist Griff Hosker, who is known for his realistic and detailed military sculptures. Hosker spent years researching the Napoleonic Wars and the uniforms and equipment of the cavalrymen who fought in them. This research is evident in the meticulous detail of the sculpture, which is accurate down to the smallest detail.

The Waterloo Napoleonic Horseman 10 Griff Hosker was commissioned by the Waterloo Museum in Belgium. The sculpture was unveiled in 2015, and it has since become one of the most popular exhibits at the museum.
